Orden baseball team is already preparing to give the managers and players of the other teams a reception on the occasion of the presentation of the pennant. The Orden team is now too far in the lead to be overhabled by any of its competitors, and the question of the pennant is practically settled. The reception will be held on the evening of the last appearance of the Pocatello team here, which closes he schedule so far as Orden is concerned. It will probably be in the nature of a ball or banquet, or both, the expense to be borne by the local association.

The officer will say very little about the train robbery and chase other than the hold-up was undoubtedly committed by professionals whose plans were well laid and executed in the most approved style. On the chase every known ruse to throw the posses off the trail was resorted to, and in addition to these tricks the robbers were aided by a heavy rainstorm which obliterated their tracks.

The marshal went to Saratoga and investigated the report that the robbers were seen there, but found there was very little on which to base the story.

The report from Laramie that a posse of three men that was pursuing the four men seen at Grand Encampment was turned back by the four horsemen is not credited here.

The authorities have been advised that the outlaws have been seen heading toward the country in the vicinity of Price, Utah. A posse has been sent out from that place to intercept the outlaws and capture them if possible.
